German Chancellor Bethmann Hollweg and Admiral Holtzendorff, chief of the naval staff, left Berlin yesterday for the army headquarters to consult Emperor William in regard to a reply to the American note. The chancellor and Ambassador Gerard conferred for half an hour yesterday afternoon.

Opinion Divided.

Public opinion in Germany remains divided on two main lines. A small, powerful faction, led by Count von Reventlow, would welcome a breach with America; while the attitude of the other group, indicated by articles by Editor Wolf of the Tageblatt, has urged that a breach be avoided if possible on any acceptable basis.

England Getting Anxious.

At a secret session of parliament yesterday Premier Asquith said: "The government will ask parliament for compulsory power unless by May 27th, 50,000 men have been secured by volunteer enlistment."

Paris says a French aeroplane and a Zeppelin fought a duel two miles above the earth at 3 o'clock this morning, the aeroplane firing incendiary shells. It is believed the Zeppelin was damaged.

A German aeroplane of the Fokker type has been brought down near Lunenburg.

Geneva dispatches say the German newspapers are now taking a serious view of the German-American situation and that Emperor William is expected to return to Berlin.

Americans who attempt to leave Germany by way of Switzerland are encountering difficulties. Many have been held up at Constance, the Baden frontier having been closed since yesterday. Paris says the Swiss-German frontier has been closed since Monday and no foreigners will be allowed to leave Germany for 20 days.

Berlin says the answer to the American note may not be expected before the end of the week. It may be presented Saturday.

A definite statement of the attitude of the United States toward armed merchant ships has been made public by the state department at the direction of the president. It says that merchantmen have a right to arm for protection only, but declares "merchantmen which have used armament for aggressive purposes are not entitled to the same hospitality in neutral ports as peaceably armed merchantmen."

Ambassador von Bernstorff in response to a request from Berlin, has cabled suggestions for the German course in the submarine crisis which he believes will avert a break between the United States and his country. He has sent a wireless to his government asking that no action be taken until his cable message is received.

London, April 26.—The official communication concerning the situation in Dublin says:

"At noon Monday serious disturbances broke out in Dublin. A large party of men identified with the Sinn Fein party, mostly armed, occupied Stephen's Green and took possession forcibly of the postoffice, where they cut the telegraphic and telephonic wires. Houses also were occupied in Stephen's Green, Sackville street, Abbot street and along the quays.

Twelve Known Dead.

"In the course of the day soldiers arrived from the Curragh and the situation is now well in hand. So far as is known here, three military officers, four or five soldiers, two loyal volunteers and two policemen have been killed and four or five military officers and seven or eight soldiers and six volunteers wounded. No exact information has been received of the casualties on the side of the Sinn Feiners.

"Reports received from Cork, Limerick, Ennis, Tralee and both Ridings of Tipperary show that no disturbances of any kind have occurred in these localities."

All in German Plot.

The morning's raid by German warships, the first since the bombardment of Scarborough and Hartlepool on Dec. 15, 1914, is connected to the

LEWIS WILL MAKE WAR ON WILLIAMS

Chicago Postoffice Nominee
Displeases Him.

Washington, April 26.—Senator Lewis of Illinois gave out a statement declaring the president's appointment of Dixon C. Williams as postmaster of Chicago was unsatisfactory to him and indicating he would oppose Williams' confirmation.

Lewis made an engagement to confer with the president over Williams' appointment.

Although insisting that his relations with both the president and postmaster General Burleson were "most cordial," Senator Lewis declared the president was misinformed when he was told that Williams' appointment would be satisfactory. The president appointed Williams at the urging of Burleson.

He mind with the outbreak in Dublin, Sir Roger Casement's attempted landing on the Irish coast and the midnight Zeppelin raid.

The general opinion was that the Germans planned a three-angled campaign of terrorism, counting upon first starting an uprising in Ireland and the descending upon the east coast with cruisers and Zeppelins.

Birrell Makes Announcement.

London, April 26.—Augustine Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, announced in the house of commons that grave disturbances broke out in Dublin Monday. He added that troops had been sent to the Irish capital and that the situation was now well in hand.

Minister Birrell said that twelve persons had been killed before the disturbances were quelled.

Mr. Birrell declared that the rebels were in possession of four or five different parts of the city of Dublin. He also announced that four or five soldiers had been killed.

Rebels Seize Postoffice.

Mr. Birrell made his announcement in reply to a question of Mr. Crang immediately after the assembling of the house. He said that possession of the postoffice had been taken forcibly and that telegraphic communication had been cut. In the course of the day, however, Mr. Birrell said, soldiers arrived from the Curragh and the situation was now well in hand although, as communication still was exceedingly difficult, he was not able to give any further particulars, but the house, he continued, might take it from him that the situation was well in hand.

The chief secretary said there had been arrests in Dublin but he could not give the names. Speaking from the information he had received he could say that twelve lives had been lost. Communication with Dublin, he said, still was very difficult.

At 7 o'clock Monday night, Mr. Birrell said, four or five different parts of Dublin were in the possession of the rebels, but he said they did not control the whole city.

Claims Rebels Hold Dublin.

New York, April 26.—Local Irish leaders, the Evening Mail reported in the afternoon, received a cablegram in the morning saying Dublin was captured Sunday by Irish volunteers after a sharp fight. The cablegram reported that Lord Wimborne, the lord lieutenant of Ireland; Under Secretary, Nathan and General Friend, commander of the forces, and the whole British military staff, with several hundred soldiers, are now prisoners in the hands of the Irish and are being held as hostages for the life of Sir Roger Casement. Other important successes were won by the revolutionists in other parts of Ireland, the cablegram said. German submarines are infesting the Irish Sea to attack any British transports carrying troops to Ireland. The cablegram said two

BULLETIN.

A late dispatch from the field headquarters of the American army in Mexico says two Americans were killed and three wounded in an engagement between Col. Dodd's cavalry and 260 bandits commanded by Villa chiefs at Tomachic Center, Sierra Ma dres, in West Chihuahua, April 22. Six Mexicans were killed, 19 wounded and some horses and arms were captured.

A report has been received that Col. Dodd's advanced cavalry detachment had an engagement several days ago in which both sides suffered losses. It is not indicated whether the engagement was with Villa bandits or Carranza troops.

Resumed Pursuit.

Several detachments of American troops have resumed the pursuit of Villa and are whipping the mountains north and west of Parral where the bandit chieftain is reported to be in hiding, a dispatch from field headquarters dated yesterday says.

Have Plenty of Supplies.

The advanced base of the U. S. army, 300 miles from the border, is now completely equipped, many train loads of motor trucks bringing rations, clothing and equipment, having arrived at Namiquipa during the last ten days.

San Antonio, Tex., April 26.—According to information received here by a former general in the Diaz federal army, troops loyal to Minister of War Obregon stormed the Chapultepec castle Sunday morning, where First Chief Carranza has taken up residence since his arrival in Mexico City.

Await Conference of Generals.

Washington, April 26.—The state and war departments, acting jointly prepared instructions for Major General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff, governing his forthcoming conference with General Obregon. General Funston also will participate in the conference.

The instructions to General Scott, according to officials in close touch with the Mexican situation, provide: First, that he is to insist to General Obregon on the right of the United States troops to remain in Mexico to carry out the purposes of the punitive expedition, namely, to capture Villa or disperse his bands.

Must Get Use of Railroads.

Second, that to facilitate this campaign, the use of the Mexican railways is essential.

Third, that General Obregon must give instructions to release commissary supplies to the American army seized by Carranza authorities at Chihuahua. It is held to be immaterial that the supplies were not consigned to the American commanders direct.

Fourth, that it is the purpose of the government to withdraw the punitive expedition only when either the United States or the de facto government has captured Villa or effectually dispersed his followers. General Scott and General Funston are to convey the opinion of this government that assurances of intentions will not be sufficient, but that only the capture of Villa or rout of his band will satisfy this government.

DETROIT.

Detroit is the metropolis of the state of Michigan and the world of gasoline. It has 173,000 people, on one-half of whom race of automobile grease can be discovered by any astute observer; it is growing so rapidly that several hundred acres of truck gardens are spoiled annually by having street pavements laid on top of them.

Detroit is an old town and moved along contentedly behind the procession until about 14 years ago, when it got the specialization idea and started out to manufacture all the automobiles in the world. It has succeeded so well that it now has 640 acres of automobile factories and more garages than drug stores. Rich men in Detroit stop their limousines to give pennies to beggars. In 1911 the model runabouts and night on a Detroit boulevard has 10,000 acetylene eyes, to say nothing of little red tail blinkers. A man may rob a home in Detroit and be forgiven for his family's sake, but if he stops his automobile the wrong way of the grain at the curb, or cuts a corner while driving across the street, he is fined, imprisoned, excommunicated, banished and hit with a club.

Detroit manufactures so many automobiles a year and some of its factories are so large that all the automobile tires each day and thousands of seriously inconvenient. This industry has increased Detroit's population to an alarming extent and has made it very famous, but it has also made it unpopular in many quarters. Whenever a man in Iowa or California or New Zealand has to hire an additional horse power to tow his automobile home, he raises both hands high and prays that Sodom and Gomorrah may be summer resorts compared with Detroit.

Detroit prides itself on its fine clean streets, its handsome buildings, its great Belle Island park and the fact that it is the only city west of New York which has made any progress in its efforts to get a big union depot out of the Vanderbilt lines. Detroit is only a mile away from Canada and the price of living at Windsor on the other side is 33 per cent lower, but notwithstanding the fact that a brand new tunnel runs between the two cities very few Detroiters seize the opportunity to escape.

Detroit abuts on the St. Clair river for fifteen miles and sees more shipping pass its doors than does any other city in the world. THIS WILL INTEREST STOMACH SUFFERERS

Says Indigestion comes from an excess of hydrochloric acid.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescent, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

SEA ATTACK ON BRITAIN FAILS

German Ships Driven Away in Lowestoft Raid.

FOUR KILLED ALONG COAST

British Cruisers and Destroyers Engage Attacking Squadron—Three Struck but Little Damaged—British Warships Bombarded Germans on Belgian Coast—Kaiser's Destroyers Damaged.

London, April 26.—German battle cruisers appeared off Lowestoft. Local naval forces engaged the raiders as did British light cruisers. The German warships retreated in twenty minutes. Announcement of the appearance of the German warships was made in an official statement.

Lowestoft is on the North Sea coast about 100 miles northeast of London. It is almost opposite The Hague.

The German warships opened fire on the coast before departing. Two men, one woman and a child were killed. The material damage apparently was small.

In the engagement two British light cruisers and a destroyer were hit, but none of them was sunk.

Official Statement Issued.

The following official announcement was made:

"About 4:30 o'clock this morning the German battle cruiser squadron, accompanied by light cruisers and destroyers, appeared off Lowestoft. The local naval forces engaged it and it about twenty minutes it returned to Germany, chased by our light cruisers and destroyers.

"On shore two men, one woman and a child were killed. The material damage seems to have been insignificant so far as is known at present. Two British light cruisers and a destroyer were hit, but none was sunk."

Three German Destroyers Hit.

London, April 26.—The Amsterdam correspondent of the Central News Telegraphs that during the bombardment of Zeebrugge the fire from the British warships was answered by three German destroyers. It is said these destroyers were driven into Zeebrugge harbor and that all of them appeared to have been hit.

THE KITCHEN CUPBOARD

A RUN ON CHICKENS.

CHICKEN PIE.—Put creamed boiled chicken into a baking dish and cover with pastry. The sauce may be made of stock instead of milk and thickened with cornstarch. Individual patty tins may be used instead of the deep pottery dish. Peppers cut up and added to the pie will improve its flavor.

Chicken Souffle.—Run cold boiled chicken through the meat grinder. When you have two cupfuls blend two tablespoonfuls of flour with two of butter, and to this add two cupfuls of milk. Season with salt, cayenne and chopped parsley and add the chicken to the white sauce. Half a cupful of breadcrumbs will thicken the mixture still more. Finally separate four eggs, add the beaten yolks to the chicken mixture. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites last of all. Bake in a buttered dish for thirty-five minutes. Serve immediately.

Chicken Turnovers.—Use a croquette mixture, but instead of frying lay the rolls on rounds of pastry, fold over, bake and serve hot or cold. A little minced ham or tongue may be added if you like the flavor.

Chicken Soup From Leftovers.—A chicken soup from leftovers is particularly good when herbs have been used in the stuffing. Cook the carcass, bones, skin and any stuffing until a sufficiently rich liquor is obtained. Strain, cool, skim and season. When ready to serve beat an egg yolk for each quart of stock, blend with the soup and beat a spoonful of unflavored whipped cream on each plateful.

Club Sandwich.—Make two square slices of toast, previously trimming off the crusts of the bread. After buttering, lay upon the lower slice two thin slices of crisply cooked bacon, a slice of seasoned cold chicken, a tender lettuce leaf and spoonful of mayonnaise. Cover with the other piece of toast and cut diagonally. Serve while the toast and bacon are hot.

PRINCE ALBERT

the national joy smoke

Buy Prince Albert everywhere tobacco is sold. Topsy red bags, 5c; tidy red tins, 10c; handsome pound and half-pound tin humidors—and in that fine crystal-glass pound humidors with sponge-moistener top that keeps the tobacco in such splendid condition—always!

So it's up to every red-blooded man to jump the boundary line between himself and smoke happiness and know just what all this jimmy-pipe-joy-talk and makin's talk is about!

Men all over the world are today smoking Prince Albert because it meets their taste; because it gives them real tobacco enjoyment they have never found before!

Don't you realize that if Prince Albert, in a few years, has made three men smoke pipes where one was smoked, before and started men everywhere rolling their own cigarettes, that it certainly has the call on you—at least for a try-out!

Why, that's only being fair to yourself!

AVOID BREAK, URGES MANN

Congressman Opposed to War, but Favors Preparedness.

Washington, April 26.—Republican Leader Mann supported the senate amendment to the army bill to provide for a regular army of 250,000 men after he had failed to prevent consideration of a special rule to bring disputed points between senate and house to a conference.

"I am against this country entering war," he said amid applause, "but I am in favor of sufficient preparation now so that if we were forced into war we will have something to fight with. I shall, however, do everything in my power to prevent this country from going into war except under extreme circumstances."

ANOTHER CONVOY OF RUSSIANS IN FRANCE

Czar Sends Second Force to Aid of Republic.

Paris, April 26.—A second convoy of Russian troops arrived at Marseilles aboard transports.

The Russians were received with all military honors and debarked amid enthusiastic cheers.

The contingent arrived at 10 o'clock in the morning, its coming being greeted by flying of flags and blowing of whistles from the craft of many nations in the harbor and by a large crowd gathered on the quay, which was especially prepared for the arrival of troops, all merchandise having been removed. A regiment of husars provided a military guard of honor.

General Ministier, the governor of Marseilles, accompanied by his staff, welcomed the commander of the Russian force.

The Russian troops, assembled on the docks, replied to the greeting from the shore and harbor with hearty cheers. The debarkation was immediately begun, the crowd continually manifesting its enthusiasm.

Turks Slay German Officers.
London, April 26.—The Turkish garrison revolted and slew all its German officers before the Russians captured Trebizond, says the Daily Mail's Odessa correspondent.

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do. Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

GASOLINE AGAIN.

When we were first told that the war had batted up the price of gasoline, the public accepted the sad tidings meekly, because the war had boosted the price of everything else—why not gasoline?

But after the price of gasoline had advanced 60 per cent the big oil corporations had to find some other excuse, so they told the consumer that the supply of crude oil was diminishing.

This claim that there is an oil famine is false. It has been exposed in the reports of the geological survey, in the reports of the federal trade commission, and by Secretary Lane, who said in his report to the United States senate that 15 per cent of the production of crude oil in 1915 was in storage at the end of that year.

What actually has happened to gasoline prices was caused—but only indirectly—by the war.

The war shut off the foreign demand for kerosene. It cuts off the oil corporation's profits from this foreign trade. And, therefore, in order to maintain its dividends, the oil trust now proposes to pluck the consumers of gasoline.

And note that while gasoline prices have gone up 60 per cent the oil companies have in some instances been paying 50 per cent dividends.

One 50 per cent dividend was declared by the Standard Oil company of California. From the Philadelphia North American we clip this:

"Dividing profits that have been accumulating for several years, directors of the Pure Oil company, with headquarters in the Lafayette building, this city, have declared in addition to the regular dividend of six per cent an extra cash dividend of 50 per cent. The 56 per cent dividends amount to $2,539,737."

Consider also the remarkable dividend declarations of the Standard Oil group for the last quarter of 1915, which reached the astonishing total of $21,788,636.

BUTTERBEANS A BACK YARD CROP.

Too few backyard gardeners attempt to raise butterbeans. Yet they make one of the most easily raised, most productive and delightful of crops.

Radishes and lettuce and beets are very good, but they are relishes that don't cut the cost of living materially. Butterbeans—called lima beans by soulless, proper folks—are a substantial and delicious food that the average workman cannot afford to buy often.

But if he will plant a nickel's worth of seed he will be assured a mess a week from July until frost.

The pole beans are much more practicable for a backyard garden than the bush beans, for they will produce much more in a small space. Use a rack or a dead tree trunk six feet high. Plant the beans when all danger of frost is past. Break up ground finely and use manure. Place the beans several inches apart.

You will have beautiful, quickly growing vines continuously producing a food delicately delicious but as nourishing as meat.

PERILOUS PATH OF ISOLATION.

Suppose the United States, without joining in an agreement with the entente allies, went through a long period of technical war with Germany and that peace in Europe should finally be declared, leaving the United States still at war with Germany.

It is all very comfortable for Americans to sit back in their easy chairs and say that war with Germany will not amount to anything because the kaiser's reservists are not to be feared and because the German navy can not get out to do any damage to the mainland of America or land troops on the Atlantic seaboard. But with Germany freed of her present assailants, with her navy intact behind her naval bases ready to take the sea and with her army smarting to get at the nation which she regards as responsible for supplying munitions to France, England and Russia and seeking revenge, and with the whole German nation smarting under resentment and anger, it may be a different matter.

Would it not be to the interest of the nation to consider such a situation as that? It is time for plain talking and cool thinking.—N. Y. Herald.

TENDENCIES IN DANCING.

One of the "smart" dancing academies of New York, conducted in a measure by women in society, has announced that it begins to feel the passing of the dance craze.

The symptom may be important. It is possible that our leading bankers and railroad presidents will no longer be seen hesitating and one-stepping on a ballroom floor in a manner that is far different from their precision energy during business hours. It may be, in other words, that the fluffy exaggerations of the craze are to pass in order to give place to a society fad for bicycling, or military drilling.

But as for the passing of dancing—we cannot see it. The dance, as Miss Ruth St. Denis is interpreting at one of our music halls, is as old as the human race. People always have danced and they always will. They may have gone too far with it in the recent past, but that is probably only preparatory to falling back upon the real line of defense and reorganizing the positions gained in order to hold them permanently.—Chicago Post.

WEALTH IN ALASKA WATERS.

When Alaska was purchased for only seven million dollars, no one ever thought of its value as a source of food products. Alaska now is regarded as the coming center of the fish supply of the world. A writer familiar with the great territory says:

"The sea beats upon 26,000 miles of Alaska shore line, a distance greater than the circumference of the earth. All of that vast stretch of waters is teeming with the most edible fish on earth. Every bay is a harbor where these fish can be prepared for markets of the world, and the greatest ships afloat can anchor in safety while taking on cargoes.

The food wealth is no less important than the mineral wealth of Alaska, for the demand for foodstuffs of all descriptions is increasing and prices are advancing. The tapping of new sources of supply is most desirable.—Providence Journal.

Her Feet Just Kept on Dancing.

(Adapted from Hans Christian Andersen.)

Daddy's Bedtime Story — A Pair of Shoes, Both Black and Red.

WHEN the children asked daddy for a story he told them this: "When a little girl, Karen, wore her red shoes to be confirmed instead of black ones the old lady she lived with was very cross and told her she must always wear black shoes to church, even if they were old. So when the next Sunday came Karen looked first at her red shoes, then at her black ones and then at her red. And at last she put the red ones on. It was a beautiful sunny day, and the old lady and Karen went to church by way of a path through a cornfield which was rather dusty. Beside the church door stood an old soldier with a crutch in his hand. He had a long curious beard not very white. In fact, it was more red than white. He bent down and asked the old lady if he might dust her shoes, and Karen stuck out her little foot too. 'What beautiful dancing shoes!' said the old soldier. 'Mind you stick fast when you dance.' And as he spoke he struck the soles of her red shoes with his hand.

"The old lady gave the soldier a copper and went on into the church with Karen. And all the people looked at her feet, and all the portraits on the wall looked too. And when Karen tried to sing hymns and say the Lord's Prayer all she could think of was her red shoes. "Now, the old lady was tired walking to church, so her coach came to take her home. As she stepped into it Karen lifted her foot to step in too, and just then the old soldier cried, 'What pretty dancing shoes!' Karen couldn't help it. She took a few dancing steps, and then her feet just kept on dancing, just as if her shoes had power over her. She danced right around the church. She couldn't stop. The coachman had to come and lift her into the carriage. But her feet kept on dancing, and she even kicked into the old lady. At last, when they got home, they took the red shoes off, and Karen's feet had a little rest. The old lady put the red shoes away in a cupboard, but Karen could not help going every few minutes to take a look at them.

"Then one day the old lady became very ill. The doctor said she could not live. She had to have the best of care, and there was no one but Karen to tend her. But there was a grand ball in the town, and Karen was invited. She looked at the old lady who could not live, then she looked at the red shoes and thought there was no harm in using them. So she put on the red shoes and went to the ball and began to dance!"

Then daddy looked at the clock, which said five minutes past bedtime. So the children kissed him good night.

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y. — "For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation." — Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

97th Anniversary, I. O. O. F.

An especially enjoyable occasion was the celebration at I. O. O. F. hall Tuesday evening of the 97th anniversary of the introduction of Odd Fellowship into America. The three lodges in Dixon—Dixon lodge, No. 39, I. O. O. F., Minnie Bell Rebekah lodge and the Nachusa Encampment, joined in preparing the entertainment for the evening. A program of much merit was rendered, with Rev. George W. Stodard in charge as master of ceremonies. The program were Miss Arnhahn, reader, Miss Gertrude Nesbit, violinist; Sydney and Victor Echler, pianists; Elmer Rice, soloist. Captain Ferris, chaplain of the Sixth regiment, I. N. G., introduced as the speaker of the evening by the master of ceremonies in a brief speech, gave a particularly clever and interesting address, Odd Fellowship and referring to the great need of a pure patriotism in these critical times.

An appetizing supper was served in the dining room, a la cafeteria, but, as but ninety guests could be accommodated by the Edison Disc Phonograph furnished through the courtesy of J. E. Moyer, was enjoyed by those remaining in the lodge parlors. Cream, cake, coffee was served by a committee composed of Mrs. Herrick, Miss Wold, Mrs. Stephens and Mrs. Filson, assisted by Miss Jessie Wold, Miss Ruby Schrock, Miss Minnie Jones, Miss Dolly Fauth, and Miss Emma Kentner. The tables in the dining room were prettily adorned in the Rebekah lodge colors, pink and green, carried out in carnations and ferns. The parlors were also decorated in the same colors.

Some 300 guests enjoyed the evening, including besides the members of the Dixon lodge and their friends, a number from the Ashton, LaSalle, Polo, Amboy, and Sterling lodges.

DELICIOUS, WHOLESOME "SPEAR HEAD"

Made by Modern Sanitary Methods, of the Choicest Red Burley Leaf

Able-bodied, manly men naturally like to chew tobacco—and they want plug tobacco, because that is by far the most satisfying form for chewing.

Spear Head is particularly delicious and wholesome, because it is made of ripe, choice, mellow, red Burley, hand-stemmed, thoroughly cleansed, and pressed into plugs so carefully and expertly that not a drop of the precious juice escapes.

Chew Spear Head and you get the most enjoyable sensation tobacco can give—the direct contact between the tongue and the sweet, pungent, natural juices of the leaf.

Spear Head has a luscious, lasting, fruity flavor you will find in no other tobacco.

Hearing but Not Listening.

In the course of a visit to Nagpur, the capital of the central provinces, writes Mr. Stanley Coxon in his Indian reminiscences, I heard of an amusing ending to a civil case. It was an appeal case, and on one side was a Mr. Stanton, an English barrister, and on the other a number of native pleaders. The arguments on both sides had been heard, and the case closed for judgment.

Suddenly one of the native pleaders got up and addressed the court once more. Mr. Stanton suffered it for some time; but, losing patience, he also stood up and, addressing the court, said, "Your honor, I would beg with all respect to point out to the court that my learned friend opposite is entirely out of order in addressing the court, and if I may be permitted to say so the court has no right to be listening to him."

The court, who at that time was writing, put his head over the desk and said, "Mr. Stanton, it's a great piece of impudence on your part to assume that the court is listening to him."

Moving Picture Shows.

An observer says the reason that all classes like motion picture plays is that each person puts into the mouths of the silent actors the exclamations, words and lines that he himself would use under like circumstances.

Incidents and situations are flashed on the screen, but the spectator tells the unspoken story to himself, and there is no possibility of artificial, strained or incomprehensible dialogue. What the spectator imagines is the thing that is natural to him. To one who watches Hamlet with Yorick's skull the words of the play may come, "Imperious Caesar, dead and turned to clay, might stop a hole to keep the wind away." To another's imagination Hamlet says, "Well, we all gotta come to it."

Could explanation be simpler, yet more profoundly true? — Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The Early Circus.

Leaving out of count the great circuses of Rome and Antioch and coming down to something of modern times, the first circus in England was on a footpath known as Halfpenny Hatch, in the Waterloo road, London. There, in 1770, Astley's first performance was given, with the aid of a drum, two fives and one clown. A charge of sixpence was made for the front standing places. There was no building and not even a tent, but merely a ring of ropes and stakes. Primitive as were the arrangements, Astley soon attracted good audiences and was able to add to his program conjuring, transparencies, vaulting and tumbling, with displays of fireworks. In course of time he was able to hire an inclosed ground and erected seats under a substantial roof. He called the place Astley's amphitheater riding house.

Women and Golf in Olden Days.

Clark, in his "Golf, a Royal and Ancient Game," printed a few decades ago, recounts how strangers at the old St. Andrews course abroad were given a trial on the famous holes, and if they proved to be of the tribe of turf diggers and sand lifters they were ignominiously thrust into the outer darkness of the "women's green." The accommodations accorded to women in the old days were in the nature of a sop to Cerberus, merely to keep them quiet and satisfied while the men indulged in the more serious pursuit of a serious business with a better equipment on a finer course. In the annals of one old golf club it is recorded that since a certain green was habitually flooded and generally useless it was recommended that a new hole be built in its place and the old green given over to the women.

The Sleep of Seeds.

Oats, corn, fennel and some flower seeds were exposed during 118 days to a temperature of 40 degrees F. below zero. Afterward, when placed in suitable surroundings, nearly all of the fennel, oat and corn seeds and many of the others germinated. It is concluded that the protoplasm, or the principle of life, in a resting seed is in a state of inaction not comparable to that of a smoldering fire, but rather like that of a chemical mixture which is capable of forming a combination whenever the required conditions of temperature and illumination are present.

How She Was Named.

A little colored girl, a newcomer in Sunday school, gave her name to the teacher as "Fertilizer Johnson." Later the teacher asked the child's mother if that was right.

"Yes, ma'am, dat's her name," said the fond parent. "You see, she was named fer me and her father. Her father's name am Ferdinand, and my name is Liza. So we named her Fertilizer." — Boston Transcript.

Copper Came From Cyprus.

The word copper is generally admitted to be derived from Cyprus, as it was from that island that the ancient Romans first procured their supplies. In those remote days Cyprus and Rhodes were the great copper producing districts.

A Story of Mountain Railroad Life

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad, by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood Helen makes a spectacular double rescue of Storm, now a freight fireman, and of her father and his friends, Amos Rhineland, financier, and Robert Seagru, promoter, from a threatened collision between a passenger train and a runaway freight. Seagru, employed by Seagru and Capelle, his lawyer, interrupted by Helen while stealing General Holmes' survey plans of the cut-off line for the Tidewater, fatally wounds General Holmes and escapes. Storm and Helen chase the murderers on a light engine and capture them. Spike has hidden the plans and manages to inform Seagru where they are cached. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Seagru helps Spike to break jail and uses him to set fire to a powder train hauled by Storm's engine. Helen saves Storm from a horrible death.

Where could the survey be, now? was the question recurring always to Helen's mind. Toward the close of the dinner, Seagru, rising, unlocked his desk for a flask of Chartreuse. There, lying in the corner exactly where she had seen it, Helen again beheld the survey, a blue print beside it. Seagru was pawky enough to close and lock the desk after he had taken the flask out. How, she asked nearest, was she to get that desk open again? Seagru dismissed his serving man, and this did not allay Helen's uneasiness for herself. She did not want to be left alone a minute with him now; things were getting too complicated. But could she in some way get into the desk?

Rising, she said she would clear the table a little. Taking hold of the flask he had just taken from the desk and holding out her hand with a smile she asked him for his keys. Seagru was in no position to refuse so intimate a request. With an air of camaraderie he handed them over and Helen pushed back the cover of the desk. But as she did so Seagru threw his arms around her. She struggled indignantly, but could not get away. For a no-precipitous cut she frowned high above it. Like a frightened fawn she ran up the rocks and down, only to hear Seagru breathing maledictions close behind, and with the distance steadily lessening between her and certain capture. Brought at last to bay, she dashed down the cliffs to find a hiding place. Not a nook or cranny offered a hope of concealment, and a misstep where she trod meant certain death. Panting and bewildered, she heard Seagru climbing down the ledge on which she had found a narrow foothold. Her escape was cut off, and Seagru descended triumphantly toward her. She warned him back.

"Give me that blue print!" he shouted with an oath.

"Keep away from me," Helen panted. "You're a wretch. I'll never give it to you. I'll die first. Don't you dare come down here. I'll drag you over the cliff if I have to go over myself."

Nothing daunted, he came on. There was but one chance left to get away and, unhesitating, she took it. Turning, just as he thought he had her in his power, she sprang from where she stood on the edge of the precipice far out over the ocean beach. He stood spellbound. She struck with a great splash. He saw her come up, strike out and sink again, as if helpless. But he knew her unquenchable determination, her resource and her daring, and was shrewd enough to watch the surface of the bay closely. Sure enough, in a little while he could see her, after swimming a distance under water, regain the surface and with long, powerful strokes swim away.

At no great distance from where she had plunged into the bay a speed launch lay at anchor. Helen recognized the boat; it had, in truth, once been her own, and she had named it The Spiderwater. It belonged now to the owners of her father's estate, but she believed she might borrow it once more. Seagru, impatient with rage, and following her down the shore, saw her reach the launch and climb resolutely up over the gunwale into the cockpit.

Shaking herself like a duck, and without losing a minute, Helen spread the wet blue print out on the deck, broke the motor lock on the ignition switch, and turned the engine over. She knew the motor well; it was a powerful Loew Victor, and after her second effort it hummed like a dynamo. While it was warming up she cut the mooring line. Seagru easily suspected she meant to get to Rhineland at Oceanside. He looked at his watch. If he could catch the limited he could still reach the city ahead of her. Exasperated, and out of breath, he hastened back to camp, routed out his chauffeur and took his racing car for the station. Hardly a minute was left to him, and his hope of reaching a point where he could flag the through train vanished when he heard its whistle and saw the gleam of its headlights coming down the Signal grade.

But he would not give up. Urging his man to speed, he gained the highway paralleling the railroad track, and as the limited shot by, Seagru, with all the power that could be got out of his motor, actually held for a time abreast of it. He yelled and shouted as one sleeper after another drew slowly past—both the train and the motor car were running very fast—but he could attract no attention. Helpless with rage, he saw the last car pulling gradually past, and furious at being balked, he stood up on the seat and as the car drew past him, he jumped over the rail and landed on the observation platform.

Helen was pushing the launch toward Oceanside. The ocean below the bay laps almost the edge of the railroad track, but her heart sank as she looked back and saw the night train tearing up the track and rapidly overhauling her. Instantly told her that Seagru would somehow board that train in an effort to get to the city first. As the engine drew nearer, she picked up a pair of glasses and leveling them on the cab, discovered George Storm on the right side. She waved a signal flag at him, but his eyes were glued on the track ahead. Then, as if by an inspiration, she seized the cord of the air whistle at her hand and in the Morse code signaled for help. Storm turned his head and looked back questioningly along his train; then up at his own whistle. The whistling continued, and his attention was finally drawn to the launch, now dropping behind the train. Helen caught up her signal flag again. In a flash he recognized her, and calling his fireman over they listened to her appeal.

"Give me paper, pencil," shouted Storm, as he shut off the throttle and listened to the long and short toots that re-echoed in jerky succession from the surface of the sea against the towering cliffs and through the flying cab. On a leaf, torn from a pad, Storm scratched out the signals:

"Have survey. Seagru on your train. Delay so I can reach Oceanside first."

The engine whistle shrieked his answer to her eager ears.

"Something wrong with engine already."

The fireman, learning the truth from Storm, tried to persuade him, whatever happened, not to delay the train. It would cost Storm, he urged, his job.

"What's the job to me?" demanded Storm, applying the air and bringing up the train with a jolt. So saying, he snatched a small handful of tools from the box and prepared to get down.

Seagru had made his way into the coach. He summoned the conductor, and being known was accorded every courtesy. But the race was now first on his mind, and when he heard the brakes grinding, and running back on the platform saw fire screaming from the wheels, he called the conductor, demanding to know the cause of the stop. Going forward together for an explanation, the two men found Storm under his engine with wrench and hammer, while in the distance Seagru could see the Spiderwater cutting the waves like foaming giants and slipping away to where a stormy directors' meeting was in session at Oceanside, and Rhineland was in the light of his life to prevent summary action being taken to stop the cut-off work. In vain he showed Helen's telegram, which had come in time to rescue him from complete defeat. But Seagru's henchman, Capelle, conniving with the disaffected element in the directorate, was pushing to a vote with every prospect of success the resolution to stop work.

"What have we got to go on?" he demanded, facing Rhineland down. "You know as well as I do we are throwing hundreds of thousands into a project absolutely uncertain. You offer a telegram. What good is the telegram? Where can Helen Holmes get a survey at an hour's notice that would justify us in keeping on?"

Beside the engine of the limited the conductor and Seagru were volleying sharp and suspicious questions at the fireman. He told, reluctantly, of the mysterious launch and of Storm's exchange of signals. No more was needed to infuriate Seagru, who now understood the connivance. Storm crawled out from under the engine and Seagru met him with an abusive epithet. The stalwart engineer promptly knocked him down. The crew dragged the two men apart and the conductor ordered the fireman to take the limited to Storm, with folded arms, refusing to lend further assistance. But despite his stubbornness the big train pulled into Oceanside just after Helen stepped from the deck of the speed launch to the dock. She ran all the way up the esplanade survey in hand, to where she could catch a taxicab and drove hard for the Tidewater building. There she alighted only to be confronted by two men—Seagru and an officer. Seagru pointed to Helen: "There she is! There are the documents she stole—in her hand. Arrest her!"

Before Helen could collect her senses, the officer had seized her and Seagru had snatched the survey.

"Stop," she cried, "that is my property, stolen from my father. I, not he, am its rightful owner!"

While she protested, stormed and wept tears of humiliation and anger, Seagru was producing papers to convince the slow-witted official that the survey belonged to him and that Helen was the thief. In spite of all she could say, he won out. Indeed, the guardian of the law was ready to take Helen to the station when Seagru magnanimously intervened, told him to let her go and said he was satisfied to recover his property.

Upstairs the directors were closing their protracted session, Rhineland vainly trying to hold them together until his ally should appear. The sound of an opening door raised his hopes. Helen rushed into the room and hastened to his side.

"The survey—where is it?" he cried, reading bad news in her face.

She told him of her battle-of how she had been robbed at the very foot of what were once her father's stairs. Everyone listened. Then half a dozen men began talking—some for, some against crediting what they had just heard.

Rhineland put his arm around the despairing girl. "No matter. We know now who has our property, gentlemen. We'll get it yet."

Capelle, laughing furtively, left the room to report to Seagru. The chairman rapped for order. Rhineland, trying to comfort Helen, took her to her taxicab and they drove back to the launch together. Dazed, furious at her misfortune, Helen met another surprise at the pier. Storm, awaiting her return there, helped her to alight from the taxicab. She could only regard him breathlessly. He laughed in his reassuring way: "It's really I," he said to her, offering his hand. "I'm discharged—but I told the superintendent I might yet live long enough to discharge him. What do you think he threw back at me? 'I hope if I ever deserve it as much as you do, you will discharge me.' I guess it was coming," concluded Storm good naturedly.

"But I've got a marine license and I'm going to run your launch to Signal bay for you. Got plenty of gas in the old tub, Helen?"

His robust humor was infectious. With Storm at the driver's wheel, they soon reached the office in the launch and were discussing the exciting events of the night when Helen's eyes fixed on the canvas covering the deck of the boat. It was on this she had laid the blue print to dry and the impression had been definitely transferred. She seized her uncle's arm, pointed and explained. Rhineland, jerking a knife from his pocket, cut the canvas from the deck and showed it to Storm, who headed the launch in a great foaming circle back toward Oceanside.

The directors were preparing to go home when three half-crazed people dashed into their room. Rhineland, Helen and Storm told their story and showed their find. Excited in spite of themselves, the listeners crowded about the table. They inspected, objected and argued. The evidence was indisputable and the chairman called the meeting to order and asked its sense. Sympathy for the plucky daughter of their old president was perhaps not wanting in influencing their action; at all events, almost before Helen could realize it was being done, a resolution declaring their support should not be withdrawn, was put and carried. However, the chairman, clinched his own feelings by catching Helen's hands and congratulating her.

Seagru—pleased with what he believed his escape from a serious complication—was bound for his camp on a returning train.

Helen, with Rhineland and Storm, was again aboard the launch. They were speeding contentedly back to Signal bay.

A WORD WITH WOMEN*Valuable Advice for Dixon Readers.

Many a woman endures with noble patience the daily misery of backache, pains about the hips, true, nervous spells, dizziness and urinary disorders, hopeless of relief because she doesn't know what is the matter.

It is not true that every pain in the back or hips is trouble "peculiar to the sex." Often when the kidneys get congested and inflamed, such aches and pains follow.

You can tell it is kidney trouble if the secretions are dark colored, contain sediment the passages are too frequent or scanty. Then help the weakened kidneys. Don't expect them to get well alone.

Doan's Kidney Pills have won the praise of thousands of women. They are endorsed at home—Read this Dixon woman's convincing statement:

Mrs. C. Charlton, 516 Lincoln Ave., Dixon, says: "I suffered for a long time from pains across my back and sides. The trouble was particularly severe at night and early in the morning. When I bent over to lift anything, I was hardly able to straighten up again. My kidneys were inactive, too. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Leake Bros. Co.'s Drug Store, weren't long in giving me relief." (Statement given May 21, 1912.)

On January 21, 1915, Mrs. Charlton said: "I use Doan's Kidney Pills whenever my back gets lame or sore and they always help me."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Charlton has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

British Seize More Mail. Berlin, April 26.—The Overseas News Agency says: "It is reported from Copenhagen that the British took into port the Danish steamer Gulfoss, bound from Iceland for Denmark, and removed all the first-class mail, parcels and baggage of the passengers."

German Powder Plant Blown Up. Athens, April 26.—A large German powder factory at Dedagatch was blown up, says a dispatch from Saloniki. The explosion killed a large number of persons, among them a grandson of Premier Radoslavoff of Bulgaria.

Mountain Trees.

Some interesting facts relating to mountain trees are given by Elms A. Mills in his "Rocky Mountain Wonderland." He says:

"A few timber line trees live a thousand years, but half this time is a ripe old age for most of the timber line veterans. The age of these trees cannot be judged by their size or by their general appearance. There may be centuries of difference in the ages of two arm in arm trees of similar size. I examined two trees that were growing within a few yards of each other in the shelter of a crag. One was fourteen feet high and sixteen inches in diameter and had 337 annual rings. The other was seven feet high and five inches in diameter and had lived 492 years."

"One day by the sunny and sheltered side of a boulder I found a tiny seed bearer at an altitude of 11,800 feet. How splendidly unconscious it was of its size and its utterly wild surroundings! This brave pine bore a dainty cone, yet a drinking glass would have completely housed both the tree and its fruit."

Origin of the Letter V.

The letter V may be regarded as the mutilated remains of one of the symbols used by the ancient Egyptians in their hieroglyphics or picture writing. A common animal in their country was the two horned sandviper, a representation of which stood for V. The priests ultimately found that for the practical purposes of everyday life it was a waste of time to use elaborate hieroglyphics and invented a kind of shorthand to meet the occasion. In this the snake was reduced to a V with a dash (V-) to represent horns and body. The Phoenicians adopted this letter, and from them we get our V by loss of the dash, leaving only the two little horns of the original picture. This snake is still common in Egypt and is probably the one mentioned in Genesis xlix, 17, "Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that bite the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward." Travelers tell us that it is still addicted to this unpleasant habit.

Music of the Church.

Nothing is plainer than the seemingly hopeless decadence of the music of the church as compared with modern possibilities and realities of musical art to-day. It is now some 200 years since the spirit of music left the church—since the church could hold and spiritually feed a great composer as it had done in the preceding centuries. The spirit of music, emancipated from the materialistic and puritanical influences which overtook established religion, brought forth the great modern art of music, with Beethoven as its leader, says Musical America. What has happened to that art at the hands of composers less lofty and less spiritually minded than he the world knows only too well, especially of late. The divorce has become almost complete. Not only has music, in its greatest powers, forsaken the forms of the church; latterly it has departed from spiritual vision and aspiration within its own artistic province.

Factors That Determine Salaries.

In the Woman's Home Companion a successful business man says that salaries are fixed by the amount and quality of work that a man can deliver. "Puff," in his opinion, is a negligible factor in the business world. "And that applies to the man who is getting $30,000 a year just as truly as it does to the man who is getting $30 a month. The only way that I can be paid more money than I am getting is by delivering more work to my company than I am now delivering or by showing my company how to save more money and so have a larger profit at the end of the year."

Wax Matches.

Wax matches, so called, are made by drawing strands of fine cotton thread, twenty or thirty at a time, through melted stearin with a small admixture of paraffin. The wax hardens quickly upon the threads, and the long tapers thus produced are smoothed and rounded by pulling them through iron plates perforated with holes of the desired size. Finally the tapers are cut into match lengths and dipped.

Social Distinctions.

"What train do you take coming into town in the morning?" "I used to take the Pinochle express at 7:14, but since I became a member of the firm I've been traveling on the Bridge Whist Limited, which leaves at 8:23."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Sailing Orders.

"What's that sheet there?" asked the sick sailor. "That," explained the nurse, "is your chart."

"So? Well, what's the next port I make after quinine? I don't like that stop."—Kansas City Journal.

Madeira.

Conebiologists hold that the finding of certain land snails on the island of Madeira, known to exist or to have affinities in no other place in the world except Europe, is sufficient proof that Madeira was at one time connected with the mainland.

Highly Recommended.

Replying to yours of the 19th inst. asking for information about one John Mullen, beg to state that I can say nothing to discredit of same, to his credit even less.—New York Post.

BREAKFAST LUXURIES.

SPOON CORN BREAD.—One cupful of cornmeal, one pint of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of sugar, salt to taste, three eggs. Let milk almost come to a boil, then stir in meal and cook until thick. Let cool and add lightly the yolks and then the whites of eggs. Pour into a greased pan and bake in a moderate oven. Serve from a baking dish.

Raised Waffles.—Mix a half cupful of butter with a quart of flour, add slowly a quart of hot milk, and when the mixture is lukewarm half a compressed yeast cake that has been softened in a half cupful of lukewarm water. Beat well, add two well beaten eggs and let the batter rise overnight in a warm place. In the morning beat well, let rise half an hour longer and bake in a well greased waffle iron.

Sour Milk Wheat Muffins.—Put one cupful of sour milk into a rather deep bowl and sift into it two cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of sugar and one-half teaspoonful of soda in a little warm water and beat vigorously into the sour milk, flour and other ingredients. Have the oven and gem tin hot and just before turning the batter into the tin fold in a well beaten egg.

Puffed Bread to Serve With Coffee.—Trim the crusts from a loaf of French or Vienna bread and divide the loaf lengthwise, first into halves, then quarters and eighths. It should be pulled apart, preferably using two forks in the process. Place these ragged strips in a baking pan that has been lined with brown paper and dry out with the warming oven for several hours. Then put them in the regular oven, close the door and bake them a golden brown.

Norwegian Bread (For Dyspeptics).—The ingredients required are one pint of barley meal, half a pint of graham flour, half a pint of wheat flour, one teaspoonful of salt, two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one pint of cold milk. Sift together all the dry ingredients and add the milk gradually to them, with two tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Beat hard for forty minutes.

CARE OF YOUR MACHINE.

How to Oil Your Sewing Machine and Save Nerves.

Sewing is not one-half as hard as some people find it if the sewing machine is kept in good order. When the machine works hard and heavy take the needle and shuttle out and give every joint and bearing a generous bath of gasoline.

Of course there should not be a lighted lamp or fire of any kind in the room, and the windows should be open. Turn the wheels briskly for a few moments, to enable the gasoline to penetrate to every part and to loosen and wash away all dirt and grit; then clean it all away.

When all the oil and grime have been removed oil with proper lubricating oil, running the machine for two or three minutes before inserting the needle. Now with a piece of clean skin wipe away all superfluous oil.

RHUBARB PIE.—Line a deep plate with crust and put on a rim, then wash, but do not peel the rhubarb; cut in half inch pieces. If the stalks are very large cut them thinner. Fill loosely into the pie and heap this plate a little. Mix a heaping teaspoonful of flour with a generous cupful of sugar and a tiny pinch of salt; sprinkle over the pie and put on upper crust, which has several half inch gashes in it to let out steam. Wet the edge of under crust before putting on rim, then wet the rim before putting on top crust. Do not tuck crust in, but trim it off. Bake in a good oven until crust is brown.

Simple Charlotte Russe.—Take dry sponge cake or, better still, some lady fingers; place in dish, whip a half pint of cream until stiff, flavor with small teaspoonful vanilla and pile on the lady fingers or cake in a glass dish. If you have any currant or grape jelly drop a little on each one's portion when served.

Alaska Surprise.—Inside a mould of vanilla ice cream place some brandied peaches with whipped cream; perfume the whipped cream with a little char-treuse; freeze, unmold, place on a platter, decorate so as to cover all the ice cream with a fairly good layer of beaten whites of eggs, to which has been added a little chocolate powder; place in oven to color. Serve at once.

Orange Cake.—Yolks of five eggs, two cupfuls granulated sugar, two cupfuls bread flour, one-half cupful cold water, one-half teaspoonful soda, one teaspoonful cream tartar, whites of three eggs, grated peel and juice of one orange. Beat yolks until thick, sift sugar three times and add. Beat the whites of eggs stiff and add to first mixture, next the water and soda, then flour and cream of tartar sifted twice. Lastly add the orange juice and grated rind. Bake in a dripping pan, and when done cut in halves and frost with orange frosting. Frosting—Whites of three eggs, one orange juice and grated peel and powdered sugar to make stiff enough to spread. This cake is not good until the day after making. Be sure to use bread flour. Frosting may be made without whites of eggs.

Madagascar.

The great island of Madagascar, in the Indian ocean, lying off the east coast of Africa, was officially recognized as a French colony in 1896 after a war of occupation. The majority of the natives are not Africans, the Malayan element predominating in their greatly mixed blood. Of the total population of more than 2,500,000 by the last census, the Hovas, the dominant race, numbered about 550,000, and they are regarded as belonging to the Malayan stock.

The Sakalavas, whose negro affinities are strongly pronounced, rank next in numbers, and besides other indigenous races there are many persons of Arab and Indian descent. The seat of the government is at Tananarivo, which has a population of about 60,000.

Nature the Healer.

The influence of the forms and actions in nature is so needful to man that in its lowest functions it seems to lie on the confines of commodity and beauty. To the body and mind which have been cramped by noxious work or company nature is medicinal and restores their tone. The tradesman, the attorney comes out of the din and craft of the street and sees the sky and the woods and is a man again. In their eternal calm he finds himself. The health of the eye seems to demand a horizon. We are never tired so long as we can see far enough.—Emerson.

Explained.

"Our air mattresses," said the dealer, "are filled in the months of April and May. That accounts for their remarkable resilient qualities."

"Is the air of those months better than others?"

"They are the spring months, you know."—Exchange

Remembered Him.

Uncle George—Come here, Willie. Don't you know who I am? Willie—You bet I do! You are ma's brother, who stayed here two months one time and never offered to pay a cent for board. Oh, yes; I've heard pa speak of you often.—Indianapolis News.
